Hunt the depths with cunning bots in the game Rift. Survive the vicious and brutal waves, hunt prey and protect yourself with a flamethrower to kill the enemies. Join Rift - The Game Watch the Killing and Hunt The Depths Music: Music by - PhotonLouiseBand: - SonicTheHedgeHog: - Whacker Anthem: About Humble Mobile Bundle: *The Humble Bundle is a monthly, one-time downloadable game promotion. There are different tiers available, which allow you to pay various amounts for different games. All of the games included in the bundle come with HumblePatches, which makes them work with Nvidia PhysX and UE4. These can be activated, disabled, or enabled in the options menu of the game. Additional graphics settings can also be disabled if preferred, with no impact on gameplay. Humble Bundle is built by Humble Bundle, Inc., a financial services company based in the United States, and is funded by Andreessen Horowitz, Lightspeed Venture Partners, Doughty Hanson, Ribbit Capital, Felicis Ventures and Jerry Yang. The company was founded in 2010, and has its headquarters in the Tech Coast of California. The team behind Humble Bundle is still led by co-founder Greg Staats, and features former Double Fine executive Matt Sledz, as well as 5 of the original Double Fine team behind Psychonauts, Double Fine Productions, as well as Tim Schafer. (Editor's note: The above launch trailer for Psychonauts 2 was created by Humble Bundle for Humble Bundle's investment in Double Fine. To see more about Humble Bundle's investment in Double Fine, check out this article from Mashable. Also, in addition to investing in Double Fine, Humble Bundle is the main sponsor of Double Fine's Crash of the Titans - a 10 day live stream jam packed with live shows, special guests, Q&A's, game and game development panels, a live show with Debbie Cannon, SF Sketchfest, and the Double Fine Adventure Virtual Reality game.) unknown underwater world. It is well worth the long download! Pale Blue Dot by ByteBox Games (Free) - HTC Vive and Oculus Rift. HTC's new virtual reality headset, the Vive, is set to arrive in several European week. In anticipation, the headset has been reviewed by Engadget in the United States and CVG in the UK. The reviews are mostly positive: in the future, the Vive is a well-made, comfortable, and competent VR headset. Despite earlier shipments taking place in California and UK regions, the review arrived in Europe a week later, meaning several European journalists were not able to test the headset's capabilities. This was the case for Engadget in the US and CVG in the UK, who each voiced their concerns over the delay. Meanwhile, the Oculus Rift, which arrived in three to five weeks, has been reviewed in Europe by GamesIndustry, and the Rift is the clear winner in that regard. In the latest update on Gear VR, developers have stated that the update is a very important one for the game. The update brings an important requirement change to achieve Metal Gear VR development. The change will allow the game to run on Gear VR without incurring any data charges. This is likely going to cut down on the amount of data users will be consuming. That being said, there will be an impact on the game's visual fidelity, as the game will run on a lower resolution screen at a higher frame rate. It will likely reduce visual loading times, but graphics should still look good on the player's eyes. The change in rules affects all Sony funded apps on the Gear VR, and there is no guarantee when new updates will be available for all existing apps. The announcement also showed the app support for four resolutions (2560x1440, 1080x1440, 960x1440, 640x1440). Game developers will have to ensure that they can run on the same rules for all these options. TearawayUniverse is a simple puzzle game, with the player controlling Teary, a small blue creature, through a long and difficult journey. The d41b202975 an air pocket at the lowest depth, in the best location where the environment is the most alive, as it were, created by a need for an immersive and highly efficient VR experience. The goal is to find the right balance of immersion, immersion, and playability. This is my rendition of this concept. Jaap the Pixel is your personal helper. He is an air pocket, ready to share his wisdom and good humor with you and let you know where you need to go in the game. Our amazing and the map of our planet is the world around you. I am just a helper and tool. With my help you can explore the world to the best extent." Main Gameplay Ideas: Humanoid Joystick Control - By switching between your HTC Vive and the HTC Vive controllers you can walk around the environment freely and quickly, without much space required. The character is intended to be a blind person. Consequently, the general idea was to make swimming possible and thus provide an exact and natural motion experience for the character. Swimming is therefore, supported by a wide range of activities. Swimming by design is a motion skill that isn't easy to learn. Therefore, a set of underwater control mechanics has been designed for this game, which makes it accessible to everyone. We will have swimming exercises in the deep water, then the character learns to move through the water's surface, and finally to kicking, swimming and treading on the ocean floor. Feedback - With the addition of a floating eyeball to the character concept, the character will be able to observe both the current environment around him as well as his own memories. Through swimming in different environments, the feedback and eventually the evolution of the character will follow. - "On the sea, she sees the terrible horrors of the ocean." --Jared - "The unnecessary slaughter of the whales means the slaughter of human beings as well." --Park Jae-ryung, a Korean artist - "However many whales are slaughtered, the ocean will not be better off." - Kanso Todo - Japanese artist Main Features: Easy to Learn and Hard to Master - If you have never played a game, you can still enjoy the awesome real-time animation and the fluid control mechanics. If you already

Online Sort of Series? Monday, September 26, 2010 It's coming! Steve Edwards has finally remembered that I have an internet address, so it's go time for an update. I first wrote these notes a couple of years ago because I'm still writing, I may post the first and second installments here over the next few months (in either order), though this is likely to be the last one. Ultimately, I use this assignment to find whether I'll be stuck doing sales training for the rest of my career. In the time it took me to write this, I've also learned more about my , my two cats, my God, and my in-laws. I was nearing the end of this gnment when I came across what I think is a rather prescient quote n Robert Dessaix: There is no need to explain that the miracles we are ssantly visited by are real, that they involve crucial human choices decisions of equally crucial importance. But there is no reason to ose belief over unbelief; and it is a choice that each of us must e... Let us know how we use our selves, and the moment will rmine, or not determine, the moment of revelation: each moment becomes a revelation of the moment that it is....The mystery is not , but knowledge of his destiny, that destiny is not present, but the re for it, knowledge of himself that he cannot attain, yet cannot but re. Monday, August 3, 2010 Eddie Edwards: Sometimes, you erstand a concept to such an extent that it changes your life. Ed ens' books introduced me to the idea that the universe had a self- oducing, self-organizing, yet unexplainable, complexity to it. John g: Yes, I remember you. I actually thought you were dead for a long e. Eddie Edwards: I'm sorry to hear that. John Resig: But it's good to onfused. Eddie Edwards: Indeed. And I'm glad to see you're doing . John Resig: Thank you. Eddie Edwards: Hey, so you're a big lltalk fan? John Resig: Oh, absolutely. Eddie Edwards: I have an idea a startup of sorts, a sort of Massive Collaboration Network.
